

PRESS RELEASE – February 12, 2009

Gainesville, FL

After over a year of negotiations Ken Fickett and Mirage Mfg have joined forces with Trey Rhyne and Over Under to found Over Under Sport Fishing Boats. Combining the skills of one of Americas most recognized names in sport fishing Over Under, with a proven builder, Fickett and Rhyne brought legendary naval architect Lou Codega onboard as the final lynch pin. Arguably one of the best teams ever assembled to tackle the problems of 21st century sport fishing.

In 1971 Ken Fickett founded Mirage MFG and began building boats that had specific purpose. Whether Mirage was building high performance sailboats that became perennial champions in the hands of the most demanding skippers or sport fishing boats that have achieved near cult status for their ride and construction quality, compromise was never a part of the equation.

In 2006 after nearly twenty years of building sport fishing boats, the decision was made to temporarily halt production of Mirage's very successful 32. Never a high volume production boat, as a result of the commitment to high tech composite techniques, the 32 was retired to pursue a burgeoning pleasure trawler market and Mirage went on to secure the position as Americas largest manufacturer of full displacement pleasure trawlers.

The first in the line of new Sport Fishing boats is the 21 foot model. Designed as a "do anything" all around boat, one of the primary goals was to review and develop state of the art construction techniques for the new millennium. The result is a boat with an unbelievable degree of integrity, quietness, efficiency and great looks. Baptized in the unforgiving Florida Straits Gulf Stream, the 21 has never once given a hint of unfaithfulness. As predictable as time, the 21 handling and spirit has set the groundwork for the rest of the line. With a well deserved nod to the success of the Mirage 32, the new 32 builds on the reputation of its past performance and continues with the stunning classic looks of the 21. Look for more of the same, when the 40' model is unveiled in 2009.
